The Civil-Rights Bill may pass Congress, but we have a hope that the voice of Virginia may be worth semething. We are not without examples to prove that Congress has some regard for public epinion in the commonwealth, and the adfairable message of Gov. Kempers and the temperate resolutions of the Lagislature, may possibly have their proper influence. Be this as it may, the republican members of The Conservative Caucus Nomithe two Hoffeet at Richmond, have added their profest to the measure.

The speech of Mr. Harris of Virginia, is said to have elicited admiration from all parties, and that of Mr. Stephens of Georgia, may be of some service.

It this dangerous and sho king parasure should be defeated by but in ruin.

Well Said.

PUBLISHED IN GOODSON,

BY HELEN BARRON BOSTWICE, There is in every human being, however ignoble, some hint of perfection; some one place, where (as we may fancy) the veil is thin which

The king from his council chamber Came weary and sore of heart;

He called for Hiff the painter, And speaks to him thus apart : 'I am sickened of faces ignoble, Hipocrites, cowards, and knaves! I shall shrink to their shrunken measure,

Chief slave in a realm of slaves ! Paint me a true man's picture, Gracious, and wise, and good,

Dowered with the strength of heroes, And the beauty of womanhood. It shall hang in my inmost chamber, That, thither when I retire, It may fill my soul with its grandeur, And warm it with sacred fire."

So the artist painted the picture, And it hung in the palace hall; Never a thing so goodly Had garnished the stately wall. The king with head uncovered Gazed on it with rapt delight, Till it suddenly wore strange meaning And battled his questioning sight.

IV. For the form was his zupplest courtier's, Perfect in every limb: But the bearing was that of the heuchmen Who filled the flagons for him. The brow was a priest's who pondered His parchments early and la.e!

The eyes was a wandering minstrels's Who sung at the palace gate, The lips, half sad, and half mirthfuil, With a filitting, tremulous grace, Were the very lips of a woman He had kissed in the market-place; But the smile that their curves transfigured, As a rose with its shimmer of dew,

Was the smile of the wife who loved him, Queen Ethelyn, good and true. Then, "Learn, O King," said the artist, "This truth that the picture tells-How, in every form of the human, Some hant of the Highest dwells ?

We may gather, by beautiful glimpses, The form of the good within."

For the place where the veil is thin,
